Hiring gains momentum, outpaces pre-Covid levels in July

The 105% growth in active jobs on a year-on-year basis is an indication of a strong recovery in play, the Bengaluru-based specialist staffing firm observed. The count of jobs that were active, refreshed and accepted by applicants in July was 2.9 lakh, as against 2.7 lakh in June and 2.05 lakh in May.

Kamal Karanth, co-founder, Xpheno said the closing figures for July matched those for March 2021 and were the highest count over the 12 month period. However, the growth in July is more broad-based versus that in March, which was driven by the buoyancy of a financial year end.

"The climb in July was largely powered by collective action across more recovering sectors. Sleeping giants like travel & tourism, hotel & hospitality, retail & recreation have gently woken up to join the market action. The restart of a wider range of commercial activities across a larger geography brought in more green shoots in hiring activity," Karanth said.

The US federal government runs on an October 1 to September 30 fiscal.

The current pace of processing by the US Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) suggests they will waste more than 100,000 green cards, a fact recently confirmed by the Department of State officials in-charge of determining visa usage, he said.

If the USCIS or the Biden administration doesn't take any steps, the extra 100,000 green cards that are available this year will be wasted, Pawar rued.

The White House did not comment on the issue.

Meanwhile, a group of 125 Indian and Chinese nationals living in the US filed a lawsuit to prevent the administration from wasting the green cards.

"There are hundreds of thousands of gainfully employed legal immigrants in the US who would benefit from these green cards. Many of them have been waiting for a decade or more to adjust to permanent resident status but
